OUR
NET ZERO
ZINE

Harborough Museum & Library - Cultural Youth Forum

Our mission is to place museums and libraries at the heart of the cultural conversation in Leicestershire making heritage opportunities more relevant, accessible and impactful for other young people across the county.

This year young people in projects across the county have been exploring natural and cultural heritage, such as:

- Cultural heritage and the climate
- Historic environment and sustainability
- Natural resources and our historic environment

Our Net Zero Zine

We have created a Net Zero Zine and artwork out of recycled materials that highlight environmental issues we are passionate about.

We hope our zine and display start a climate change conversation with other young people in the Harborough District.

This is a lawn.

And another.

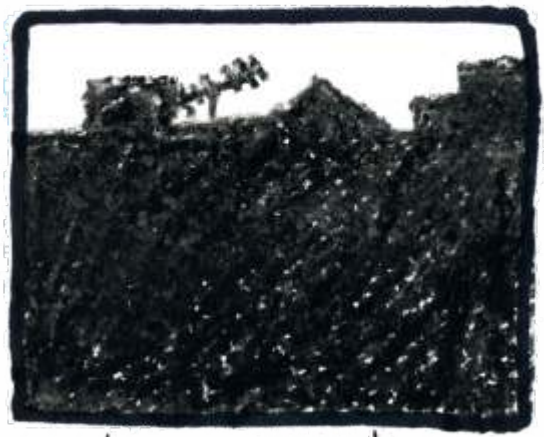

This is a forest.

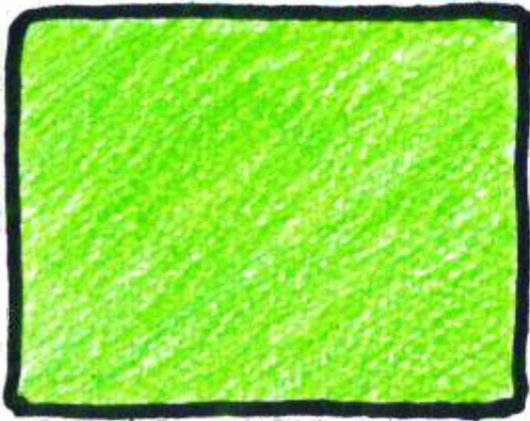

This is a jungle.

So when this...

gets replaced with this...

And another.

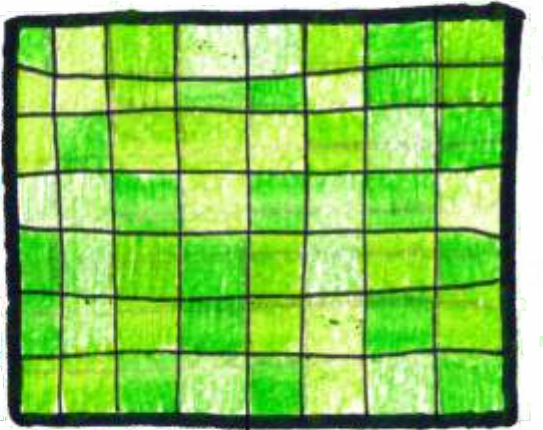

This is a meadow

All these environments are teeming with life.

All these lawns are identical.

These have nowhere to go.

And all that's left is green.

Just One by Heidi

Just One.

There once was a duck that lived on a lake.
Not two ducks, or three.
Just one.

There once was a grass-hopper that lived in a field. Not two grass-hoppers, or three.
Just one.

There once was a squirrel that lived in a forest. Not two squirrels, or three.
Just one.

Finally, there once was a butterfly.
It fluttered in the sky, through the smog.
There were not two butterflies, or three.
Just one.

The girl saw this and went to tell her parents
what she had seen.

They came back the next day and they picked up the litter, they cleared the rubbish from the river and they planted seeds.

The smog lifted.

And then they saw.....

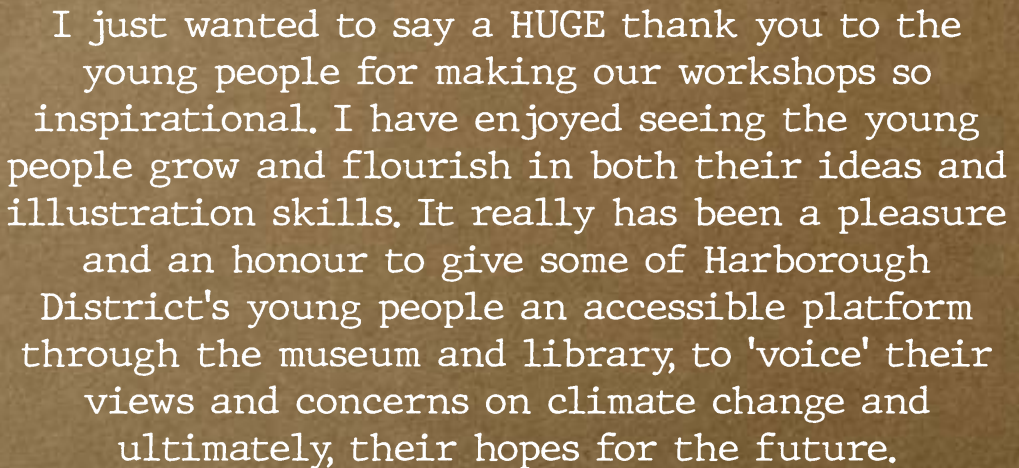

Not just one.

Not just two.

But three.....

.....and more.

A NOTE FROM KATY

I just wanted to say a HUGE thank you to the young people for making our workshops so inspirational. I have enjoyed seeing the young people grow and flourish in both their ideas and illustration skills. It really has been a pleasure and an honour to give some of Harborough District's young people an accessible platform through the museum and library, to 'voice' their views and concerns on climate change and ultimately, their hopes for the future.
